- Amazing Casey Edition-

Grade Level: _____ First _____ Subject(s): _____ All _____

Created for:  Regular Needs       Special Needs

Georgia Educational Standards Addressed: QCC 1.4 Demonstrates the ability to respect and cooperate with peers.

Teacher Materials Needed: Book: Casey and The Amazing Giant Green Shirt

Student Materials Needed: Construction Paper, pencil, markers

Steps Information: We will use the words written on the fingers to show that compliments can affect how you feel about yourself. Length of lesson is 30 minutes. Number of sessions 1.

Teacher Tips: Observe student interaction and ask appropriate questions? Ex. How did you feel when someone gave you a compliment? How did you feel when you gave someone else a compliment? Teacher Brainstorm with students different examples of positive compliments. Hand out construction paper and demonstrate how to trace your hand.

Student Tips: Students will trace their hand onto construction paper and provide positive compliments for classmates hands. They will then read their own compliments and comment on how it makes them feel.

Verification: Teacher observation of student interaction during activity. Did the students... Demonstrate an understanding of the affects of positive compliments.

Activity: Students will trace one of their hands onto a piece of construction paper. They will be put into groups where they will share their hand drawings with their peers. They will take turns writing a positive word or phrase of each finger of each hand. Each child will have five positive compliments.

Other resource: Examples of finished work, photo of finished work, Thinking, Feeling, Behaving: An Emotional Education Curriculum for Children Grades 1-6, By Ann Vernon

Summary/Assessment: Students determined that giving compliments to someone else makes them feel good by making the other person feel good. Also, receiving positive compliments makes them feel good about themselves.
